How Did our Wild Birds Deal with this Winter?

Lynn Stafford with Liz Buchroeder

We have had quite a winter in Pine Mountain Club and nearby communities. We humans have been busy shoveling snow, checking the weather reports and road conditions, bringing in firewood, and sending our city friends and relatives photos of snow banks and giant icicles (Fig. 1).

Fig. 1: Icicles adorn a Pine Mountain Club home (LB).

The wild animals and plants that inhabit our mountains have experienced the same conditions. How did they manage? This article will focus on some of our birds that opt to stay here during the winter instead of migrating southwards or descending to lower, milder valleys. Birds are warm-blooded, having body temperatures higher than humans, between 102 and 109 degrees F. How do they retain their warmth when the outside temperature reaches below 20 degrees, often with added wind-chill factor?

One method of staying warm is regulating insulation. We humans must change from light summer jackets to heavy winter down parkas. All birds have to do is raise the downy feathers underneath the outer feathers with tiny muscle fibers. The dark-eyed junco is a sleek, trim bird in the summer (Fig. 2). In winter, a junco nestled in snow-covered twigs looks chubby (Fig. 3), but has simply 'changed clothes' by fluffing the hidden down. Of course, all these feathers need care. Preening, including oiling from a special gland, takes up a good part of a bird's daily activity.

Then there is the problem of food supply to keep the body temperature stable while

Snow, Snow and More Snow

PMC received record amounts of snowfall last month during a rare blizzard that impacted much of California. Gov. Gavin Newsom declared a state of emergency in 13 counties affected by the storms, including Kern, Los Angeles, San Bernardino and Santa Barbara counties. Mountain community residents found cars buried in snow, experienced power outages, and had to dig pathways in order to leave their homes. The state's emergency agency and private weather forecasters in January said that damage from weeks of storms and flooding in California could surpass $1 billion. (See additional photos page 3.)

EVACUATION TIPS

PMCPOA Emergency Preparedness Committee

How to be Prepared Before Wildfire Strikes

- Plan where to go: To a hotel, evacuation center, friend's house, or family home out of the area.
- Plan your evacuation route: We only have two ways in and out of Pine Mountain Club. Follow the direction of the emergency personnel on which direction they want you to go. Practice different routes from your home to Mil Potrero Highway. Streets may be blocked, and you need to know alternate ways to get to the main road. Drive out Hudson Ranch Road to Highway 166 to become familiar with that route.
- Long before a fire threatens, prepare an evacuation checklist. Prepare an emergency kit for each member of your family and your pets. Go to www.Ready.gov/kit for more information on packing an emergency kit.
- Look around every room in your home and make a list of the most important items and mementos you would want to take with you. You may only have five or 10 minutes to evacuate. You may want to prioritize them by what to take depending upon amount of time to evacuate.
- Make copies of important documents: Take photos of all the rooms and the outside of the house. These may be needed for insurance purposes. Save these on a thumb drive and put them in your Grab-and-Go Kit. STAY INFORMED.
- Sign up for ReadyKern, the reverse 911 system. You can sign up at www. readykern.gov.

If Evacuation is a Possibility

- Locate your Evacuation Checklist and place the items in your vehicle.
- Cover up to protect against heat and flying embers. Wear long pants, a longsleeved shirt, heavy shoes/boots, a cap, a dust mask or dry bandana, and goggles or glasses.
- Park your vehicle facing outward and carry your car keys with you. Put your Emergency Kits in the car.
  - Locate pets and keep them nearby.
  - Place connected garden hoses and buckets full of water around the house.
  - Move propane BBQ appliances away from structures.
  - Leave lights on in the house and the door unlocked.
  - · Leave windows closed and air conditioning off.
  - Remove flammable window shades and curtains.
  - Move flammable furniture away from the windows.
  - Have a ladder available and place at the corner of the house.
  - Seal attic and ground vents with pre-cut wood.
  - Remove flammable items from your deck.

When to Evacuate

Leave as soon as fire officials recommend evacuation to avoid being caught in fire, smoke, or road congestion. Do not wait to be ordered by authorities to leave. Evacuating early also helps firefighters move more freely to do their job. In an intense fire, officials may not have time to knock on every door.

IF YOU ARE ADVISED TO LEAVE, GO. DON'T HESITATE!

The photo above is at an elevation of 5,450 feet. The association has created a new snow plowing status map on the PMCPOA website that automatically updates every five minutes. Some members have described the board as being defensive toward comments that were made at the March board meeting about our response to the recent storm. Some people were offended that we defended our actions. What would one reasonably expect us to do to refute misinformation and update members on the actual actions that were taken and how we plan to do better?

Members asked, "What did you do?" and we reported what we did at the meeting and through email updates. Members asked, "What could you do better?" and we reported on several things we can do better at the meeting and through email messages.

We have not denied we could do better. We have addressed operational issues and communications concerns, purchased equipment, and rented equipment to be better prepared.

Our response to the recent storm was called a complete failure by some members. A complete failure would have been, among other things, abandoning all snow plowing efforts, not assisting Edison, not providing a warming shelter, and not removing berms for those on our list.

Prior to the storm, our road maintenance crew prepared our vehicles and equipment. All our vehicles and equipment were fully functional and ready to go before the storm.

We had some mounts for snowplows break that were not a result of improper maintenance and some vehicles had issues related to the physical stress of the workload and heavy amount of wet snow that was being plowed. All the issues were addressed, and vehicles were subsequently repaired except for one pickup and one loader.

A few of the delays our crews encountered during the snow fall were significant when they were assisting Southern California Edison with road clearing escorts to downed power lines and rescuing some of their trucks. We had to make the decision to assist Edison in restoring power or not, and we opted to prioritize Edison assistance to resume power to members. When doing so, the snow continued to fall heavily and accumulate on other streets. Crews were also diverted when directed to clear snow for medical emergencies.

When this community was first developed, I don't think the people planning the road system gave much thoughtful consideration to snow and snow operations. The community was originally envisioned as a summertime getaway and many of our streets and homesites reflect that summer concept. We have some streets that are extremely challenging and dangerous during heavy snow, due to ice buildup, and at night, particularly those streets in the higher elevations and those that are very steep and narrow.

We appreciated the assistance from Kern County Public Works when they escorted Edison trucks to PMC during the first days of the storm and returned after the storm on March 4, along with Supervisor Scrivner and 50 firefighters, to aid with snow plowing on some streets and berm removal.

---General Manager's Update---

Karin Shulman

There is so much I want to say to contradict all the lies on Facebook, but I have decided not to do so.

I did a 30-minute interview with Bakersfield 29, and they edited most of the interview out and put together about a 1½-minute interview. There were some members upset by the interview, thinking I don't care about the members. Well, if you know me, you know that is not true. The interview was taken out of context.

I have put heart and soul into this job for six years. I care very much about our community and our members. Those who know me know that is true. To those who don't know me, I am sorry you took from the interview that I don't care about our members.

'MESSAGE' Cont. from page 6

Many people opined that this storm was overwhelming, a rarity, an extraordinary amount of snow, an unprecedented situation, a once-in-a-generation event — but who can guarantee that it will not occur again? We have critiqued our performance with input from staff and members of the community and will continue to do so, and we are preparing for future events that may include snow, floods, fire, and earthquakes.

Several suggestions were outlined in an email message from me to the members. We purchased better radios to improve communications, we purchased four new snowplows with mounts to be compatible with all our pickups, and we ordered supplies and large maps for activating an emergency operations center.

A recommendation has been sent to the Emergency Preparedness Committee to assemble a support team of volunteers to physically assist during a response to emergencies. We have had the opportunity to test our first "emergency operations center" and we will have hopefully evaluated its overall effectiveness and how it might be improved upon.

You may have already visited the Google Map system, which is a work-in-progress that will update our snowplow crews and members on the snow-plowing status of our streets – and we've had over 1,542 views (as of 1pm March 21, 2023) since it went live. Some of our streets are not shown on the actual map, but they are included on the written list.

Regarding the storm, I believe the association staff and members of this community came together in a variety of ways to tackle this storm by working as individuals and teams, including plowing, snow removal, information sharing, delivering supplies, food and medicine, and checking on the well-being of others. These people are the real heroes — our snowplow crews, our staff, our general manager, and the neighbors helping neighbors. Your efforts and contributions were greatly appreciated, and I say "thank you" on behalf of all our members.

I've been working with the general manager for almost four years. I do not believe there is one person who cares more about this association and its members than Karin Shulman. Unfortunately, she has been victimized recently with criticisms regarding what I will reference as a bad sound bite taken from a news interview that lasted about 20 minutes. Fortunately, most members and this board appreciate her contributions and dedication and do not believe for one second that she does not care about our members.

I believe I accounted for my whereabouts and association-related actions during the recent storm in my email message to the members on March 7. I should have sent a message to members earlier during the storm to reassure members we were all doing our jobs, but I honestly believed the information being shared by our general manager and roads maintenance manager was satisfactory at the time. For those of you who know me and trust me, you know I would not hide during a crisis and not be responsive to the needs of the association.

Be safe, stay healthy, and please be positive.

COMPLIMENT

• A HUGE thank you to the snowplow staff who worked long, hard hours to clear the roads. With the amount of snow we received, the larger amount of snow at higher elevations, and the miles and miles of roads, they did an amazing job. Thank you also to the staff who worked to take care of the community members at the clubhouse.

Response (From General Manager Karin Shulman): The snowplow staff and I want to give YOU a huge thank you for the compliment. The snowplow staff worked very hard 24/7 for 11 straight days before going back to two eight-hour shifts. Your compliment means a lot.
